Sub. Blows Up Part of Turk Bridge at Constantinople—England Loses 77 Vessels In Three Months— Berlin Still Awaiting Commander's Report On Sinking of Arabic.

By Associated Press.
Washington, August 31.—State Department officials disclosed today that they do not expect modified practices, under the British orders in council announced yesterday by the British Embassy, will cover the general British policy toward neutral shipping, against which the United States now is preparing its new protest.

London, August 31.—An Athens dispatch says a submarine of the allies has blown up a portion of the bridge between Constantinople and the suburb of Galata.

London, August 31.—Lloyd's reports that 68 British steamers, with tonnage of 18,000, and nine sailing vessels were destroyed by hostile craft during the quarter ending August 12.

London, August 31.—The trouble in the South Wales coal mining districts, which threatened to precipitate a serious strike, has been settled.

Berlin, August 31.—The British employed 100,000 men in their attacks on Turkish positions on the Gallipoli peninsula last Saturday and Sunday, according to a press dispatch from Constantinople, and their losses were extremely heavy.

The correspondent estimates that since August 6, the British losses have been more than 50,000. A cavalry division, he declared, was almost completely wiped out on Sunday.

Berlin, August 31.—The Vossische Zeitung reiterates that the circumstances surrounding the sinking of the Arabic are still unknown, but that only two things are possible—either that the captain of the submarine feared his vessel would be rammed and fired a torpedo at the liner, or that the Arabic struck a mine.

London, August 31.—The Russian armies along the line of the upper Bug and the Zlota Lipa, are being withdrawn rapidly and apparently without great loss, as neither Vienna nor Berlin claims any extensive capture of prisoners or booty in this region.

Due east of Warsaw, the Germans continue their steady progress while further north they are advancing more slowly.

The fall of Lipsk brings the attacking forces nearer Grodno, the last big fortress on the front retained by the Russians.

Along the western front, the usual artillery, mine and hand grenade warfare marks the operations.

Constantinople again reports heavy fighting at the Dardanelles.

In the Austro-Italian campaign, Rome reports the capture of Cima Cista, 6,500 feet high, and sends optimistic reports of the progress of the entente powers in the diplomatic negotiations in the near east.

It is said Serbia's promises are satisfactory, as far as they go.

Allied aviators are reported to have destroyed a large building in Ghent, Belgium, used to house German air craft.

It was feared marine creatures had destroyed the bodies.

NO TRACE OF BODIES IS FOUND

By Associated Press.

Honolulu, August 31.—Exposure in dry dock of the United States submarine F-4, lost with her crew of 22 men March 25, failed today to reveal any trace of bodies or to show the accident's cause.

It was feared marine creatures had destroyed the bodies.

By Associated Press.

G. P. West's report to the federal board accuses the younger Mr. Rockefeller of having caused the Colorado mine strike in 1913-14 and having "flouted the will of the president of the United States." Arson and murder were due to his policies, says the report.

MAILS USED TO STIR PATRIOTS

By Associated Press.

St. Louis, August 31.—Hand bills calling on German and Italian "Patriots" in America to help end the European war by dynamiting factories and railroads engaged in the manufacture and transportation of war munitions for the allies, were turned over to the postmaster here today.

They came from a town near Hanover, Germany. They are not considered seriously.

WET CROWD GOES AFTER FAIR BOARD

By Associated Press.

Columbus, August 31.—Because the State Board of Agriculture allowed the W. C. T. U. to have headquarters within the state fair ground but refused this to the Ohio Temperance Union, the removal of state board members on the ground of discrimination was to be asked of Governor Willis today by Harry R. Probasco, of Cincinnati, in behalf of the Ohio Temperance Union, a wet organization.

Conferees Meet Next Week

Have Decided to Proceed Ir-

Washington, August 31.—The pan American peace appeal now has been delivered to all military and political leaders in Mexico.

Several leaders in remote sections have just been reached by courier, and to give them time for reply the pan-American conferees probably will not meet until next week.

It has been authoritatively declared that they will proceed, irrespective of Carranza's attitude.

Major General Scott, chief-of-staff of the army, conferring with Secretary Lansing today, said:

"General Villa is earnestly desirous of peace in Mexico, and he is willing to sacrifice any personal ambitions and to eliminate himself, if necessary, in order to bring it about."

DEMS FIRED, TEST BEGINS

Columbus, August 31.—Thirteen Democratic employees in different state departments were discharged today, when the time for the new civil service law to go into effect has passed.

Mandamus suit against State Treasurer Archer, to compel him to reinstate several employees whom he dismissed, would be instituted today as a test case, it was expected.

Among the clerks discharged by the registrar of vital statistics, was Clifford Lucas, Chillicothe, salary, $75.

UTTERS BITTER CHARGE

Pres. Yuan Shi-Kai, of China, Declares the Officers and People of His Country Are Reposing on Bed of Straw Over Fire—Internal Situation in Republic Discouraging—Fears Greater Calamity May Result From Lack of Public Spirit.

By Associated Press.
Peking, China, August 31.—President Yuan Shi-Kai, at a recent cabinet meeting, criticised bitterly the inefficiency, bribery and gambling of Chinese public officials.

His plea for united action and national progress has created much discussion among foreigners.

"Our suzerainty in southern Manchuria has gradually gone into the hands of foreigners," he said.

"When we think of the neglect of discipline by our soldiers, the irregularities in administrative affairs, the calamities of floods and drought throughout the provinces, the selfishness of some officials and the lack of public spirit among the people, we can not help realizing that we are reposing on a bed of straw, with a kindling fire beneath it."

"Some Japanese papers have stated that China's internal affairs are just as deplorable now as in the late dynasty, and that bribery and gambling among officials still prevails. We cannot be ignorant of the history of Poland and Annan."

"During the crisis of the recent China-Japanese negotiations, our people were greatly awakened. Should they again quickly forget the indignities the country received, the greater calamity of the country is bound to come."

SNOWSTORMS TO DEFEAT TEUTONS

Russian Equinoctial Storms Due In October.

STILL CONTINUE OFFENSIVE

Hindenburg's Forces Renew Activities In Courland, While In Southwestern Russia the Teutonic Allies Are Driving Enemy Into the Marshes. Operations in the Dardanelles and on Western Front.

London, Aug. 31.—Military observers here are predicting the approaching equinoctial season will limit the further forward movement of the Teutons toward Petrograd and force them to be content with the fruits of their past successes as the winter season falls upon them.

Both Berlin and Vienna lay emphasis on the statement that Field Marshal Von Hindenburg's forces along the Dvina river in Courland have renewed their activities, which were brought to a sudden halt recently with the success of the Russians in holding Riga as a menace to Von Hindenburg's rear.

In southwestern Russia, in the Brest-Litovsk region, the Austrians and Germans are chiefly concerned in driving Grand Duke Nicholas' armies farther into the Pripet marshes, evidently with the purpose of repeating the early success of the Germans in the Mazurian lake region of East Prussia.

To the northwest, in the sector lying only a short distance to the east of the East Prussian frontier, Berlin reports an advance of Teutons and the capture of the town of Lipsk, lying just twenty miles to the west of the fortress of Grodno, upon which the aims of the Germans now are evidently centered.

With the opening of the autumn months, the military observers are directing attention to the fact that the Russian equinoctial storms are due to begin about Oct. 21. They assert that they are the danger limit to military operations in the eastern field.

Desperate fighting continues in the Dardanelles in the vicinity of the spot where the British recently made their landing. The Turkish reports claim the recapture by the Ottoman forces of allied trenches with heavy allied casualties. These claims, however, have not yet been conceded by Great Britain.

The military operations in the western field have been confined to trench fighting. On the Austro-Italian frontier, the Italians claim that their forces are slowly advancing northward.

WILL RELEASE GREAT STOCKS

Washington, Aug. 31.—Great Britain has given assurances to the United States that a large quantity of goods of German and Austrian manufacture contracted for by American importers prior to March 2, when the British orders became effective, would be soon released for shipment to this country. Most of these goods, said to be valued at several million dollars and made up of chemicals, dyestuff, pharmaceutical articles and Christmas toys, lie on the docks at Rotterdam.

MURDER WOMAN

New York, Aug. 31.—Mrs. Sarah Leitner, wife of Samuel Leitner, head of the Leitner detective agency, was shot and killed in her husband's office. With her was her husband, and no one else that the police have been able to find, although Leitner says that after the shots were fired he saw two men wearing gray caps run out of his office.

BIBLE CLASSES TRAIN FOR WAR

Philadelphia, Aug. 31.—The first organized religious movement in the United States to provide a national defense organization will be launched in this city this week when the directors of the Drexel-Biddle Bible classes will announce their plans for training their 30,000 members along military lines. The idea, according to Anthony J. Drexel Fiddle, father of the movement, is to form the military organization for peace purposes rather than for war.

SPRECKLES TO WED

San Francisco, Aug. 31.—John D. Spreckels, Jr., son of John D. Spreckels and grandson of Claus Spreckels, the late sugar king of the Pacific coast, received a marriage license to wed Miss Sidi Wirt of New York, daughter of the late Edward L. Wirt, formerly wealthy cattleman, real estate operator and capitalist of Kansas City.

MINERS ARE SET

Columbus, Aug. 31.—"If the Hocking coal operators are going to ask the executive committee of the United Mine Workers, district No. 6, to make any revision of the wage scale for the Hocking district, they will be making a foolish, fruitless request," said G. W. Savage, secretary and treasurer of district No. 6. "Furthermore," said Mr. Savage, "there will be no offer on our part to make any concessions."

SETBACK FOR COTTON CROP

Washington, Aug. 31.—Excessive rains that were preceded by long drought caused a setback to the cotton crop of the south in August, according to the statement of the department of agriculture. As the result the outlook for a crop is declared to be 61 per cent below what it was in July, or 69.2 per cent of normal. The official estimate of the crop puts it at 11,817,235 bales, compared with 16,134,930 last year. Throughout the month of August the weather conditions have been fair in most of the cotton states.

TRYOUT FOR UNEMPLOYED

Washington, Aug. 31.—President Wilson's plan for a federal employment agency to take care of the "army of unemployed" is to have a tryout soon in a broad national way. Commissioner General Caminetti, head of the immigration bureau, has just returned from the Panama-Pacific exposition, where he conferred with representatives of the labor departments of the states and municipalities on the question of the taking care of the unemployed. He said that there would be inaugurated soon a plan of co-operation between the federal, state and municipal authorities for the object of bringing together the employer seeking labor and men seeking work. Mr. Caminetti said that as soon as Secretary Wilson, head of the department of labor, returns to Washington, he would lay before him a plea for co-operation. Co-operation between the newspapers and the federal employment bureau is the keystone of the plan which the immigration chief expects to rear to take care of the unemployed.

Winona Lake, Ind., Aug. 31.—Women hugged and kissed each other, men shouted and many actually shed tears of joy when the Winona assembly and Bible conference grounds were sold to E. O. Excell of Chicago. Excell was the directors' representative.

SCHOOLING COPS

Berkeley, Calif., Aug. 31.—Police officers of Berkeley will be required to attend the University of California. This, it is thought, is the first time any city in the world has made preparations to have a "college-bred police department." The course of study is in the relation of mental disease to criminology.

Some people, especially those with far from vigorous appetites, say they prefer that some one else select the menu and bring it to the table as a surprise. That is what will happen to the whole family where the service of the parcel post farm hamper is put to use. The farmer is not like the city market man, who, if he hasn't the thing called for on hand, can send out for it, charging accordingly. The farmer has certain produce ready when it's hamper time, and it goes to the city kitchen, a sort of square deal grab bag. You never know what is coming out, but it's all good anyway—no blanks.

MILITARY ELEMENT IS LOSER

BOTH WOULD MAINTAIN PEACE

German Chancellor Finally Obtains the Upper Hand in Regard to Differences With the United States—Admiral Von Tirpitz Solicitous of Effect of Reprimand on German Submarine Commanders.

Washington, Aug. 31.—While officials are waiting for the report from the German government on the sinking of the Arabic, interest is centered chiefly in reports that there is a difference of opinion between Von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German chancellor, and Admiral Von Tirpitz of the admiralty, as to the course that is to be pursued.

Secretary Lansing received a dispatch from Ambassador Gerard at Berlin and there is good reason to believe that it contained information as to this difference. The understanding here is that Admiral Von Tirpitz and the German chancellor are agreed on the desirability of settling the controversy with the United States and maintaining peace. They are agreed on Germany making substantial concessions. The point on which they differ, according to the reports that have reached Washington, is in regard to the disciplining of the German submarine commander, if it turns out that he really is responsible for the sinking of the Arabic.

Admiral Von Tirpitz, it is said, is solicitous of the effects of such action upon commanders of German submarines generally. While he joins with the German chancellor in desiring a settlement of the submarine controversy, even if it includes a disavowal in the case of the Arabic, he is anxious that the matter shall be handled in such way that it will not have a demoralizing effect upon other commanders of German undersea boats. This is believed here to be the explanation of the recent conference by the German chancellor and Admiral Von Tirpitz with the kaiser.

The information that has reached Washington is that the German foreign office finally has obtained the upper hand in the councils in regard to the differences with the United States and that the wishes of the chancellor probably will prevail in the negotiations for the settlement of the submarine issue. Until recently the military element in Berlin was controlled by everyone in regard to the controversy with the United States. That fact has been repeatedly reported to the state department by Ambassador Gerard.

The American Dollar

Last Saturday was the third consecutive day upon which a new low record of depreciation of the English pound sterling was established in the present money center of the world—New York.

Quoted at $4.63 1-8 at the close of Friday's market the standard pocket piece of John Bull dropped five-eighths of a cent in two hours on Saturday.

The present generation cannot remember when the English pound sterling was not the standard of value in money the world over. By it the coins of all other nations were measured and tested. It was the yard stick which measured the commodities in the world's markets. Even our own dollars were worth so much or so little in pounds sterling.

The war has changed conditions and the haughty Britisher is compelled to have his standard coin measured for worth by the standard coin of another nation.

The American people cannot help feeling pride in the fact that the American dollar is now the standard of value the world over and that Great Britain for once must measure up to our standard money.

The experience is a new one to both the United States and Great Britain. This nation has the largest trade balance in its history and for the first time has become the money center and the treasure house for the gold of Europe.

The American dollar never looked so good and never was so good as it is today.

A Community Seeks to Hide

The people of Marietta, Georgia, that little southern town now known all over the land as the place where Leo M. Frank was lynched by a mob, are active.

The worst feature in connection with their activities is that they are endeavoring not to apprehend and punish the parties who perpetrated the monstrous crime which has brought disgrace upon the commonwealth of Georgia but in an endeavor to prevent that very much desired event from actually happening.

Marietta is nervous and every stranger who arrives is pointedly asked what his business is and why he comes to that city. Should the stranger be unable to give a satisfactory account of himself and assure his inquisitors that business having no connection with the lynching of Frank brings him to Marietta, he is invited to leave, and the authorities see to it that he does leave at the earliest possible moment.

The police force of the little town has been increased, the announced reason being to protect the inhabitants from harm at the hands of those whose desire it is to wreak vengeance upon the persons responsible for Frank's death.

The more reasonable explanation of the unusual activities, however, is that the inhabitants of Marietta do not want the slayers of Frank apprehended. They are not themselves going to ascertain, judicially, who those slayers are and they do not want any strangers to obtain information which would fasten guilt upon any resident of that city.

Frequently the individual guilty of crime adopts methods designed to forestall those who would hunt him down, but it is unusual for a community to flee from guilt and undertake to hide itself from the world.

Marietta has added, it seems, one more act which points to guilt and thus increases its disgrace.

The Corn Crop Prospect

Our farmer friends who have been deeply concerned lest a continuation of the rainy weather would prevent the proper maturing of the corn crop, if indeed the splendid corn has not been kept green and soft too long already, may gain encouragement from the remark recently made by one of our local "agriculturists."

The reader will note, of course, that an agriculturist is one who makes his money in the city and spends it on the farm, while a farmer is a man who makes his money on the farm and spends it in the city.

This particular agriculturist is certain if it becomes necessary to cut the corn green this year, that it will not be the first time that a good corn crop has cured in the shock.

Being neither agriculturists or farmers, we can only hope that he is correct and to confidently believe that he is until the disillusionment comes, if it ever does come.

Those many many people who depend upon the prosperity of the farmer and are solicitous for his welfare, from selfish as well as kindly motives, can certainly gain much happiness from the confident assurance that every thing is all right and the corn of Fayette county is "made" right now.

But be that as it may, we can all of us—farmers and the rest—quit borrowing trouble and being in the dumps about what may never happen.

We know—all of us—that the corn crop is tremendous in its probabilities of yield now and we can afford to live happy and contented in the full confidence that, having done so well thus far, nature is not going to destroy that work.

We can all be happy in the belief that nature will send us the dry days to ripen and cure the corn in the fields or failing in that, that bundled up in its great green husk the corn will dry out and harden in the shock.

Poetry For Today

IF THEY COULD SPEAK.

If they could speak, those dumb beasts as they lie
On battle-field where war has laid them low,
What would the horses tell us ere they die?

What bitter grief do these mute sufferers know?

They hold no hate at heart for humankind,

Nor crave they aught, forsooth, but what they need;

And man has taught them but to love and mind,

Ofttimes in servitude to his own greed.

Not glory lures them to the battle-field,

Nor foolish pride that rails at fancied wrong;

They are but thoughtless beasts and can but yield

The while they feel the fettters of the thong.

But then, methinks, those eyes so filled with pain,

Ere yet the glaze of death has robbed their sight,

Have known full well how hellish and how vain

That carnage is as argument for right.

Green meadows would they call the fields of glory,

And brave ones those who help make strong the weak,

And love and service then would be the story

Of those dumb beasts, if they could only speak.

After a woman has raised a few children it makes her sick to see two young things making love.

Any princess can tell you that her fellow has forgotten more than her father ever knew.

If we ever do get around to telling the truth about everything most of the girls will have to carry signs bearing the inscription, "Fresh Paint!"

Us men like to knock the women because they gossip so much. But if you want to hear some real gossip just hang around a barroom where a bunch of men are gabbing.

They may not notice your virtues, but they never overlook your mistakes.

Always remember that if all your prayers were answered you wouldn't want to go to heaven.

The world has moved so rapidly in the past century that we have made improvements on almost everything but kissing.

Somehow or other, when a man is talking over the telephone you can always tell when there is a woman at the other end of the wire.

By the way, what has become of the water wagon and them there New Year resolutions? 'Tis the last resolution, left blooming alone. All its friends and companions are withered and gone.

LOCAL POLICE CONFISCATE LARGE QUANTITY OF WHISKY

James Duckwall Caught in the Act by Officers and Lodged in Jail—Anti-saloon League Behind Prosecution.

James Duckwall, local drayman, was caught in the act of unloading a cargo of whisky cases, containing 119 pint bottles, at his barn, rear South Hinde street, about 10 o'clock Monday night by the local police who, acting on a tip, had prepared a trap.

Duckwall was lodged in the county jail to await a charge, which was to have been placed against him late Tuesday or Wednesday. The liquor was confiscated.

John Kennedy, who was with Duckwall when the latter was arrested, was not apprehended, but may later be taken in charge. Duckwall told the police that a part of the whisky belonged to Kennedy, who denies implication.

Police Tipped.

The trapping of Duckwall was the result of a telephone tip, received about 7:30 o'clock Monday evening, by Acting Chief of Police Baughn. It was to the effect that Duckwall, with a two horse wagon containing the whisky, was on his way from Chillicothe.

Chief of Police Moore, now on vacation, was notified. Shortly after, Chief Moore and Acting Chief Baughn, in an automobile, started out the Chillicothe pike, after stationing Bell and Sever at the Duckwall barn.

The officers in the automobile discovered their quarry about four miles from the city on the Chillicothe pike driving a wagon as described to them, Kennedy with him.

They did not then accost the men, preferring to follow and watch their movements.

On arriving in this city, Duckwall drove immediately to his barn and had unloaded one case of the whisky when the officers stationed there placed him under arrest.

The police believe that this is not the first trip of the kind Duckwall has made, and from other quarters it is ventured that he is acting as a "middleman" for someone else.

It is stated that the local Anti-Saloon League officials are behind the prosecution of the case.

INJURED WOMEN LEAVE HOSPITAL

Accident in Columbus Sunday Is More Serious Than First Reported, Although Injured People Seem to Be Recovering Rapidly.

From the Protestant Hospital, Columbus, the Herald learned Tuesday that Miss Mary Robinson, of this city, and Mrs. Roy Hagler and Miss Maggie Clemens, of Hagler's Station, who were injured when a street car struck the Howard Hagler automobile in Columbus Sunday afternoon, would leave the hospital Tuesday afternoon.

From this it may be inferred that the injured women are improving. They will probably remain a few days at the home of Mrs. Luella Herbert, a sister of Miss Robinson and Mrs. Hagler, in Columbus, before returning to this city.

The two children, Alfred Hagler and Grove Davis, were sufficiently recovered from their injuries to attend the state fair Monday afternoon.

From information received by relatives in this city, the accident would appear to have been of a more serious nature than first reports indicated.

Miss Robinson, when the car struck the machine, was hurled from the tonneau into the street, alighting squarely on her face. The fall caused several severe bruises and lacerations of her face, besides knocking a number of teeth loose.

Miss Clemens, was also thrown from the car and, according to information here, sustained fractures of three ribs. Dazed by the shock, Miss Clemens, when she arose to her feet,

BRINGS ACTION FOR SIX HUNDRED DOLLARS

Clarinda Pitzer has brought suit in the common pleas court, through her attorneys, Post & Reid, against Adam Smith, seeking judgment in the sum of $600, with interest from March 15.

The plaintiff alleges that her mother and father, Hanna and M. G. Gilmore, entered into a contract with the defendant by which they were to pay him $1,200, to be delivered $600 each to her and her brother, Adam Pitzer, as soon as they received settlement for the mother's farm from Lee Rankin.

Settlement was procured, the plaintiff alleges, and the defendant was paid the $1,200, her share of which the plaintiff declares the defendant has refused to pay her.

PRAYER BEFORE BATTLE.

When a Whole Army Knelt Before the Order to Attack.

During one of the numerous wars waged by France two centuries ago a strange scene took place near Saluzzo, a disputed outpost, which well illustrates the religious spirit which often prevailed among the soldiers of earlier times.

The French approached the besiegers' lines, and both armies were arranged for a conflict. The sun shone from a cloudless sky; every detail on each array in the field was visible to the other, and both were held at once from the citadel.

There were three French marshals present, and it was Schomberg's turn to command. He drew up his 20,000 men in four lines, with skirmishers in front, and the regular cavalry were placed at stated intervals, ready to charge.

In this impressive order and in absolute silence the French advanced until nearly within cannon shot, when at a signal the army was halted and simultaneously knelt down to pray. Then followed the order to attack, which was silently and cheerfully obeyed.

The battle was not to be, however, for Mazamari, amid a volley of musketry, suddenly appeared, rode at a gallop between the armies and stayed the incipient fight by bringing acceptable terms of peace.—Washington Star.

LAWS OF WAR ON LAND.

Adopted to Save Conquered States From Organized Pillage.

The Hague laws of war on land, drawn up in 1899 and 1907 and adopted by all nations, were designed to check the rapacity of conquerors and to save vanquished states from organized spoliation, says Case and Company.

Pillage is formally forbidden. This is a prohibition against the looting of captured towns, against acquiring booty at the expense of private property, but does not, of course, forbid the seizure of horses, arms or military supplies taken on the field of battle.

The laws further permit a military occupant to levy, in addition to the ordinary taxes, money contributions for the needs of the army or of the administration of the occupied territory. Contributions are to be required only on a written order and on the responsibility of a commander in chief.

Their collection is to be regulated by the rules in force for the assessment of taxes, and in every case a receipt is to be given to the individual payer. But this voucher, while evidence that money, goods or service has been exacted, implies in itself no promise to pay on the part of the occupant.

Getting at the Truth.
At twenty-three he thought fate was making a special effort to keep him down.

At thirty-five he thought he might have done great things if his wife had not been such a handicap.

At forty he believed he would have been a great man if his children had not made it necessary for him to cling to the sure things.

At fifty he was positive that there was a conspiracy against him on the part of his fellow men.

At sixty he felt that if he could have been thirty-five again nothing could have stopped him.

At seventy he began to believe that he had failed because of a lack of courage and inability to make the most of his opportunities.

At eighty he was almost sure of it.—Chicago Herald.

Tyrone.

Tyrone takes its name from one of the eight sons of Niall of the Nine Hostages, the ancestors of all the O'Neills. Four of these sons carved out large portions of Ulster between them.

Eogan's share becoming known as Tir Eogain (land of Eogan), which still survives as Tyrone, while Conall's share, long known as Tir Conaill (Tyrconnell), is now Donegal. Fermanagh still bears its ancient name, which signifies "the mountain valley marsh district," which after centuries of wavering finally triumphed over the alternative, Maguire's county.—London

Defining a Siege.
In international law a siege is thus defined by Oppenheim: "Siege is called the surrounding and investing of an enemy locality by an armed force, cutting off those inside from all communication for the purpose of starving them into surrender or for the purpose of attacking the invested locality and taking it by assault. Bombardment is the throwing of shot and shell upon persons and things by artillery. Siege may be accompanied by bombardment and assault, but this is not necessary, since a siege may be carried out by mere investment and starvation caused thereby."

Difference in Time.
A large, slow-floated darky was led against the corner of the railroad station in a manufacturing town when the noon whistle in the big factory blew and the hands hurried out, bearing their grub buckets. The darky listened, with his head on one side, until the racketing echo had quite died away. Then he heaved a deep sigh and remarked to himself:

"Dar she go. Dinner time fur some folks, but jes' 12 o'clock fur me!"—New York Times.

HE WASN'T MAKING MONEY.

But Still He Had a Good Reason For Congratulating Himself.

He was a renter, and at least every other season he was occupying a different farm. By a friend's advice he had moved the year before into an entirely new field, a dozen miles from his usual haunts, and had not been seen for several months. When the friend did see him at last it was quite by accident, business taking him into the old man's neighborhood. The farmer hailed him from the cornfield and came out to the fence.

"Hello!" said the friend. "Is this your farm?"

"Yes; and I just come over to tell you, sir, that I'll be ready to pay part of that claim of yours before long."

"You must be doing well."

"I think I'm doin' just as well as I am powerful obliged to you, sir, for headin' me this way."

"I am always glad to help if I can."

"I knew that, sir, and that's why I come away over here so far from home. It's kinder strange to me, but as long as I am doin' as well as I am I am goin' to stand it."

"Are you making any money?"

The old man's face brightened perceptibly. "No, I ain't sir," he replied hopefully, "but I'm losin' it slower'n I ever done in my life before."—Argonaut.

TO PREPARE U. S. FOR EMERGENCIES

Wilson to Take Up National Defense Program.

MEANS BIG FIGHT IN THE SENATE

Majority Leader Kern of the Opinion That the People Are Against Expenditure of Half Billion in Warships and Army Increases—Opposition Also Noted in the House of Representatives.

Washington, Aug. 31.—Administration officials let it be known that as soon as the Arabic crisis may be considered as settled President Wilson will concentrate his attention on the national defense program.

It is known already that the president and his advisers are giving careful consideration to the subject of army and navy increases. It is understood that strong pressure is being exerted upon the administration to adopt a conservative course in shaping the national defense policy. This was indicated by a statement made by Senator Kern of Indiana, Democratic leader of the senate, who declared emphatically that the sentiment of the people in his section of the country was against the expenditure of $500,000,000 on warships and army increases.

The utterances of the majority leader of the senate are in accord with the view expressed by Representative Claude Kitchin of North Carolina, who will succeed Senator-elect Underwood in the house leadership. Since the president authorized the announcement, which was accepted by the country as an earnest of his commitment to a program of adequate army and navy development, there have been increasing evidences in addition to the pronouncements from the majority leaders of congress, that the administration has a hard task before it in pushing its program to enactment.

The word which comes from a high official source, however, is that the president has not wavered because of this discouragement, and that he is prepared to "go through" with the policy he indicated in the announcement of July 23.

ARCHER DROPS FOUR DEMMIES

He had luncheon with Martin Vogel, head of the local sub-treasury, and talked with bankers and politicians. Mr. McAdoo gave "departmental routine matters" as the reason for his visit to this city. He denied that his visit had anything to do with any prospective bond issue.

WRIGHT DENIES

Dayton, Aug. 31.—Relying to an inquiry as to the stories in circulation that he is planning to sell his airplane factory, Orville Wright insists that there is no immediate prospect of selling the plant. There is no truth whatever, he says, in the story of the probable purchase of the factory by the German government.

BLUNDERS OF AUTHORS.

Some Queer Things of Which Fiction Characters Are Guilty.

For many years a favorite pastime of the literary dilettante has been to ferret out mistakes made by celebrated authors. Writers of the highest standing have been guilty of absurd "blooms," such as Flaubert's assertion that "the two adversaries were placed at an equal distance from each other." Mistakes of this sort have been excused on the ground that the authors were working under pressure of inspiration and were therefore likely at any time to make minor errors.

Stories of today do not, as a rule, appear to be written under the stress of temperamental excitement. Yet, in spite of their seemingly cool sophistication, they are not lacking in curious mistakes. A short list of these errors has been compiled by a writer in the Philadelphia Ledger:

I screamed in silent rage.

A girl tore her eyes from the stage, but her ears still lingered.

"I will never speak to you again as long as I live," hissed Dolly. (Just try to kiss it.)

Her feet were swollen from standing in wet, salty water.

Like Adela, he had dark brown hair, with enormous black eyebrows, a mustache and a short beard.

Novel Rabbit Catcher. Crabs are put to a curious use on certain parts of the Devonshire fore-shore. They are used to catch rabbits. Having located a promising burrow, the snarer takes a crab and affixes a short length of lighted candle to the back of its shell. The behavior of a crab which finds itself in a narrow enclosure is well known. It begins to run. It therefore starts away up the burrow at top rate and presently the rabbit is horrified at the sight of a jag trotting flame coming to his sanctuary. Off he goes for the other exit, only to find himself, when he emerges, in a trap.—London Spectator.

Spontini's Decorations.

Casparo Spontini, the composer, regarded himself in the light of a demigod, and when inspirations crowded upon him—he donned a wide, toga-like gown of white silk with a border of gold and a fez of white silk embroidered in gold from which a heavy tassel hung down. With great dignity he sat down before his desk, and if a grain of dust was visible on the paper on which he penned his music he rang the bell impatiently for his servant to remove the obstacle. Spontini owned so many medals and decorations that they could no longer be accommodated on his breast. At a grand musical reunion at Halle an old musician remarked to a comrade, "See how many decorations Spontini has, while Mozart has not one." Spontini, who overhead it, replied quickly, "Mozart, my dear friend, does not need them."

His Mental Incapacity. The Court—So you ask divorce from this man on the ground of mental incapacity. What proof have you that he is insane? The Woman—Who said he was insane, your honor? The Court—Why, you say he is mentally incapable. The Woman—Yes; incapable of understanding that I'm boss.

Those little South American republics should be thankful for a chance to tell their troubles to the marines.

BURNETT STILL IN

Columbus, Aug. 31.—The state board of administration adopted a resolution refusing to accept the resignation of William R. Burnett as commandant of the Soldiers and Sailors' home at Sandusky. This had been asked for by the governor last week in order that he might have the position filled by a Republican. General Burnett complied with the governor's request by sending in his written resignation to the board, effective Sept. 16.

State Inspector James A. Devine, the head of the department of building and loan associations, has declined to tender his resignation. His term expires Aug. 1, 1916.

GOV. WILLIS ISSUES DEFY

Columbus, Aug. 31.—Eased on reports which had come to him that some officials, connected with the state liquor license commission, had promised to keep in their positions such county license commissioners as circulated petitions for a referendum on the McDermott license decentralizer. Governor Willis repudiated any such deal, if there was one. He said he wouldn't abide by it, and threatened further to reduce the salaries of county licensers who became petition peddlers.

Bowser Loses A Fortune

And It Was All Mrs. Bowser's Fault.

By M. QUAD.

Copyright, 1915, by McClure News-paper Syndicate.

"By John!"

The above exclamation from Mr. Bowser, after there had been a silence of fifteen minutes in the sitting room, made Mrs. Bowser jump in her chair and the cat to stiffen her tail and look at a back window and say to herself:

"If I get out there once, I'll lick every old tomcat in town."

"What is it?" asked Mrs. Bowser as she recovered from her surprise.

"Two weeks ago," answered Mr. Bowser, "I was reading in the paper at the office an article which may have a great bearing on our future. The paper got mislaid, somehow, but here is the very article in the one I am reading."

"And what is the wonderful article?"

"I shall tell you about it and I want your encouragement. You know I have been trying for the last fifteen years to make a strike which would make us independent for life. I think this will be the strike."

"It isn't pigs or chickens or anything of that sort, is it?"

"Mrs. Bowser, don't begin this by being sarcastic. You will see that it is a very serious thing for us. If we can carry it through and I think we can, we need not ask any odds of Rockefeller."

"ELEVEN MILLION CATTLE RUNNING WILD."

"Well, I have always encouraged you when I thought you had a good thing. Go ahead."

"First," said Mr. Bowser, after some hesitation, "you know what Australia is, don't you?"

"It is 12,000 or 14,000 miles away, in the Pacific ocean. Australia is the home of the kangaroo."

"In Australia, so the papers say, there are 11,000,000 cattle running wild in the woods and thickets. These are cattle that have strayed from the herds and belong to no one. You get that point. I hope, because if is the main one."

"I see."

"Any one can help himself to these wild cattle, which are rolling fat, and, though thousands are shot annually, the total number is not diminished. And a great idea has entered my head."

"State it, Mr. Bowser."

"I have an old friend in Australia. Suppose I write to him to ship me some of those cattle? The paper said they can be rounded up and driven to the nearest seaport for $3 per head. Owing to the scarcity of cattle in this country those from Australia would sell for $25 a head as soon as landed. Isn't there a clear profit of $22 a head, and shouldn't Samuel Bowser pocket that profit?"

"There seems to be a profit," replied Mrs. Bowser, but without any enthusiasm.

"Seems! Seems!" half shouted Mr. Bowser. "Why, woman, of course there is a profit and a thumping big one, too, and it's a wonder Carnegie hasn't seen it. For $3,000 my old friend will ship me 1,000 fat and juicy cattle. I will have a buyer ready the moment they touch the dock. Is that little $22,000 worth picking up?"

"Certainly it is."

"Suppose he ships me 10,000—20,000— even 100,000 or half a million? So long as there is plenty of cattle we might take all we could round up. Just think of it, Mrs. Bowser—$22 a head for a million cattle! It makes a chill go over me when I think of it."

"And it does me, too," was replied.

"And I have your encouragement in this, have I?" rather timidly asked Mr. Bowser.

"If I can honestly give it."

"But isn't it a big thing? Isn't it a grand thing? Isn't it as plain as the nose on our cook's face?"

"But there are two or three little things you have forgotten to put in. Mr. Bowser. You say you get your cattle to a seaport for $3 a head. Then they go aboard a ship, don't they?"

"Of course they do. You wouldn't expect to swim them in from Australia to the United States?"

"But won't there be another charge for loading them?"

Mr. Bowser was silent. He was taken by surprise.

"And won't a dozen or so men have to come with them to care for them on the long voyage?"

Mr. Bowser began to hitch uneasily in his chair.

"And about the fodder?" continued Mrs. Bowser. "Of course they have got to be fed for thirty or forty days, and I am thinking that the hay will cost something. And you must figure, too, on losing a certain number, and every one lost reduces your profits."

Mr. Bowser began to look purple in the face, and his ears twitched, which was a sure sign that his soul was not at peace with Australian cattle.

"Then there will be an expense on landing your cargo. It isn't likely that you can sell the cattle on board and at a minute's notice. You may have to care for them for a day or two. You may even have to ship them by rail to Chicago, and that will be another expense."

"Mrs. Bowser, this has turned out just as I expected!" roared Mr. Bowser as he stood up and waved his arms. "Every time I have had a prospect of making a great strike for fortune you have opposed it. You are opposing this opportunity. Not one blessed word of encouragement from you!"

"I said at the start that if I could honestly encourage you I would do so, but a matter as great as this should be carefully considered. You don't seem to have considered it. You have looked only on the one side. You have only the statement in a newspaper that there are 11,000,000 wild cattle in Australia."

"But would the newspaper lie about it?" he demanded.

"It might be mistaken," she replied. "Nobody has counted those cattle. If they were fat cattle, as you assert, why don't the Australians round them up and sell and ship them away? Or why don't the Australian farmers put them with their own stock?"

"Keep right on with your sarcasm!" said Mr. Bowser, as he turned away in disgust.

"But would the newspaper lie about it?" he demanded.

"It might be mistaken," she replied. "Nobody has counted those cattle. If they were fat cattle, as you assert, why don't the Australians round them up and sell and ship them away? Or why don't the Australian farmers put them with their own stock?"

"But if you want my help, you must give me facts. As I look at it, you wouldn't make $5 a head—even if you didn't lose that much. The Australians have sent a few cargoes of fresh beef over here, but they have shipped no cattle on the hoof. I doubt very much if any steamer would consent to bring such a cargo. However, you can write to your old friend for particulars and details and I would advise you to do it."

"And let four or five months go past while waiting for his answer and let some one else seize that golden opportunity! I am not such a nimby. I think I can carry this affair through without your help. It is the last time I shall consult you about a business matter. I will now take a little saunter and perfect my plans, and then come back and write my little letter so as to mail it in the morning."

"Just wait a minute," Mr. Bowser, said Mrs. Bowser, as he started down the hall. "Our family butcher is not an Australian, but, of course, he knows all about cattle. Take your paper along with you and let him read the article and get his opinion of it."

Mr. Bowser hesitated a moment but took the paper along. He found the butcher at liberty when he entered the shop, and, holding the paper out, he pointed to the article and said:

"Please read that and tell me what you think about it. I think of going into the Australian cattle business on a large scale."

The butcher was smiling before he had read fifteen lines. When he was halfway through he laughed, and as he finished he roared and said:

"Well, what won't you be into next?"

"You have read the article, sir?" asked Mr. Bowser, with great dignity.

"I have."

"And what do you think of it?"

"You have read it to Mrs. Bowser, haven't you?" was queried in answer.

"Never you mind about Mrs. Bowser!"

"Well, Mr. Bowser, there is a new dance out for the fashionable world. There is a hop in it. It is said to be mighty hard to get that hop in the right place."

"But what in blazes has a new dance or a new hop got to do with this cattle business?" demanded Mr. Bowser.

"Oh, as to that," replied the laughing butcher. "I wouldn't go into cattle. I would go into kangaroos instead."

"For why, sir?"

"That they might show the dancers how to get that difficult hop."

Mr. Bowser went home, and the Australian cattle business suffered a sudden death.

OHIO VALLEY IS COLDEST PLACE

Washington, August 31.—Summer's coldest weather was spread today over most of the country, and lowest temperatures ever recorded in August were reported from the Ohio Valley.

THINGS DOING AT THE MOVIES

WONDERLAND.

Blanche Sweet, favorite of millions of movie fans all over the country, is coming to the Wonderland Wednesday of this week in "The Warrens of Virginia," a love story of southern aristocracy based on the civil war, and containing several gripping battle scenes.

The picture is presented by Jesse L. Lasky and David Balasco.

Jesse L. Lasky Friday presents "The Country Boy," adapted from the book and the recent Broadway success of that name. The story is that of a country boy, New York and a chorus girl.

"The Gray Friar" is the name of Tuesday's installment of the "Romance of Elaine" series.

COLONIAL.

Edmund Breese, popular and powerful dramatic star, now with the Metro corporation, appears at the Colonial Friday in a dramatization of the famous poem classic by Robert W. Service, "The Shooting of Dan McGrew."

The story is laid in farthest Alaska, along the Yukon, and the lure of the gold fields is an important factor in the plot.

"A Mind in the Past" is the title of Tuesday's "Diamond From the Sky" installment.

PALACE.

William Farnum appears at the Palace again Tuesday of this week in "The Plunderer," a play taken from Roy Norton's novel of that name.

By many "The Plunderer" is said to excell the famous "Spoilers" and the fight scene in this picture is claimed to be the maddest and most realistic ever reproduced on screen.

The picture is of five parts and is a story of mingled love, hate and lust of gold in a mining camp.

Jane Cowl, famous legitimate star, in "The Garden of Lies," by Justus Miles Forman, is billed for Friday. This picture goes five reels.

IMPORTS, EXPORTS TRADE BALANCE

Washington, D. C., August 31.—Figures made public by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce Department of Commerce, show a slight decrease in imports and a large gain in exports during July and the 7 months ending with July, 1915, when compared with those periods of last year. July imports totalled $143,099,620 this year, against $159,677,291 a year ago.

July exports were the largest ever recorded for that month, being for this year $267,978,990, compared with $154,138,947 for July, 1914, and $160,990,778 for July, 1913, when the month made a new high record.

Of the July, 1915, imports 64.6 per cent entered free of duty, against 59.2 per cent in July last year.

During the 7 months ending with July, imports this year totalled $1,008,909,441 against $1,140,593,373 in 1914, a decrease of 11.6 per cent; while exports aggregated $1,969,787,495, in 1915, against $1,200,982,162 in 1914, a gain of 64 per cent.

For the month of July, 1915, there was an export balance of $124,879,370 as compared with an import balance of $5,538,344 in July, 1914, and export balance of $21,929,008 in July, 1913. For the 7 months ending with July, the export balance fell only a little short of being a billion dollars, the total being $960,787,054, against $60,388,789 in the first seven months of 1914.

Gold imports in July, 1915, amounted to $17,262,938, against $3,391,715 in July, 1914; and gold exports in July last were $2,191,735 compared with $33,669,424 in July, 1914. For the seven months ending with July this year's gold imports aggregated $162,187,374, against $84,135,137 in 1914; while gold exports were $9,774,262, in comparison with $117,643,959 in 1914. Thus there was a net inward gold movement of $152,413,112 in the first 7 months of 1915 and a net outward movement of $83,508,822 in a like period of 1914.

In ancient times among inland peoples the possession of a salt spring was regarded as a special gift of the gods. The Chaonians in Epirus had one which flowed into a stream where there were no fish, and the legend said Hercules had allowed their forefathers to have salt instead of fish.

THE FEZ AND THE OTTOMAN.

Colors Mean Much, and Only the Arab Forgoes the Tarboosh.

That stream of people crossing the Galata bridge, over the Golden Horn, runs red, for every Ottoman, except the Arab, must wear the tarboosh. "The man with a hat" means the foreigner. The way to see Constantinople without attracting attention to yourself is to slip on a tarboosh, but the wise foreigner has been slow thus to surrender the one visible token of his special extraterritorial rights, for when trouble is afoot the word goes out to spare "the man with a hat" because of the fear of international complications. During the reactionary revolution that followed on the heels of the constitution there was a ludicrous scramble on the part of the Greeks and other Christians to get beneath hats, and the sudden crop of silk hats and turbans was wonderful to behold.

Fashions in fezzes pass in review across the bridge. The Albanian has a white headdress—a cross between a fez and a skullcap. The Persian wears a huge black felt dome that is matched in size only by the big brown bulb that crowns the head of the dervish. The hadji, whose merit in having made the haj, or pilgrimage, to Mecca is proclaimed by his huge turban, is a frequent figure on the bridge, for every Moslem man who has the means and the physical strength is expected to visit the birthplace of the prophet at least once in his life. The elaborately wound headdress of the hadji is of white cloth, but a sayid's, or descendant of Mohammed, is of green. Sometimes the mosque officials, or imams, even when they are not of the prophet's blood, wear the green turban.

SNOWSTORMS TO DEFEAT TEUTONS

Russian Equinoctial Storms Due In October.

STILL CONTINUE OFFENSIVE

Hindenburg's Forces Renew Activities In Courland, While In Southwestern Russia the Teutonic Allies Are Driving Enemy Into the Marshes. Operations in the Dardanelles and on Western Front.

London, Aug. 31.—Military observers here are predicting the approaching equinoctial season will limit the further forward movement of the Teutons toward Petrograd and force them to be content with the fruits of their past successes as the winter season falls upon them.

Both Berlin and Vienna lay emphasis on the statement that Field Marshal Von Hindenburg's forces along the Dvina river in Courland have renewed their activities, which were brought to a sudden halt recently with the success of the Russians in holding Riga as a menace to Von Hindenburg's rear.

In southwestern Russia, in the Brest-Litovsk region, the Austrians and Germans are chiefly concerned in driving Grand Duke Nicholas' armies farther into the Pripet marshes, evidently with the purpose of repeating the early success of the Germans in the Mazurian lake region of East Prussia.

To the northwest, in the sector lying only a short distance to the east of the East Prussian frontier, Berlin reports an advance of Teutons and the capture of the town of Lipsk, lying just twenty miles to the west of the fortress of Grodno, upon which the aims of the Germans now are evidently centered.

With the opening of the autumn months, the military observers are directing attention to the fact that the Russian equinoctial storms are due to begin about Oct. 21. They assert that they are the danger limit to military operations in the eastern field.

Desperate fighting continues in the Dardanelles in the vicinity of the spot where the British recently made their landing. The Turkish reports claim the recapture by the Ottoman forces of allied trenches with heavy allied casualties. These claims, however, have not yet been conceded by Great Britain.

The military operations in the western field have been confined to trench fighting. On the Austro-Italian frontier, the Italians claim that their forces are slowly advancing northward.

WILL RELEASE GREAT STOCKS

Washington, Aug. 31.—Great Britain has given assurances to the United States that a large quantity of goods of German and Austrian manufacture contracted for by American importers prior to March 2, when the British orders became effective, would be soon released for shipment to this country. Most of these goods, said to be valued at several million dollars and made up of chemicals, dyestuffs, pharmaceutical articles and Christmas toys, lie on the docks at Rotterdam.

MURDER WOMAN

New York, Aug. 31.—Mrs. Sara Leitner, wife of Samuel Leitner, head of the Leitner detective agency, was shot and killed in her husband's office. With her was her husband, and no one else that the police have been able to find, although Leitner says that after the shots were fired he saw two men wearing gray caps run out of his office.

BIBLE CLASSES TRAIN FOR WAR

Philadelphia, Aug. 31.—The first organized religious movement in the United States to provide a national defense organization will be launched in this city this week when the directors of the Drexel-Biddle Bible classes will announce their plans for training their 30,000 members along military lines. The idea, according to Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, father of the movement, is to form the military organization for peace purposes rather than for war.

SPRECKLES TO WED

San Francisco, Aug. 31.—John D. Spreckels, Jr., son of John D. Spreckels and grandson of Claus Spreckels, the late sugar king of the Pacific coast, received a marriage license to wed Miss Sidi Wirt of New York, daughter of the late Edward L. Wirt, formerly wealthy cattleman, real estate operator and capitalist of Kansas City.

MINERS ARE SET

Columbus, Aug. 31.—"If the Hocking coal operators are going to ask the executive committee of the United Mine Workers, district No. 6, to make any revision of the wage scale for the Hocking district, they will be making a foolish, fruitless request," said G. W. Savage, secretary and treasurer of district No. 6. "Furthermore," said Mr. Savage, "there will be no offer on our part to make any concessions."

TO THE POINT

More than 5,000 persons are homeless within a radius of 200 miles of New York, Ark., as a result of floods.

Sidney B. Congdon of Mt. Vernon, O., was appointed private secretary to Comptroller of the Currency Williams.

William Mackey, twenty-four, moving picture operator, was held up by four men near Byesville, O., and robbed of $100. Mackey was severely beaten.

Ohio led the United States in the 1914 production of pottery, Columbiana county alone producing more than one-sixth of the entire pottery value of the United States.

A British naval officer and sixteen boys from the training ship Cornwall were drowned at Purfleet, near the mouth of the Thames, in a collision between a rowboat and a tug.

SETBACK FOR COTTON CROP

Washington, Aug. 31.—Excessive rains that were preceded by long drought caused a setback to the cotton crop of the south in August, according to the statement of the department of agriculture. As the result the outlook for a crop is declared to be 61 per cent below what it was in July, or 69.2 per cent of normal. The official estimate of the crop puts it at 11,817,235 bales, compared with 16,134,930 last year. Throughout the month of August the weather conditions have been fair in most of the cotton states.

TRYOUT FOR UNEMPLOYED

Washington, Aug. 31.—President Wilson's plan for a federal employment agency to take care of the "army of unemployed" is to have a tryout soon in a broad national way. Commissioner General Caminetti, head of the immigration bureau, has just returned from the Panama-Pacific exposition, where he conferred with representatives of the labor departments of the states and municipalities on the question of the taking care of the unemployed. He said that there would be inaugurated soon a plan of co-operation between the federal, state and municipal authorities for the object of bringing together the employer seeking labor and men seeking work. Mr. Caminetti said that as soon as Secretary Wilson, head of the department of labor, returns to Washington, he would lay before him a plea for co-operation. Co-operation between the newspapers and the federal employment bureau is the keystone of the plan which the immigration chief expects to rear to take care of the unemployed.

JOY REIGNED AT BIG SALE

Winona Lake, Ind., Aug. 31.—Women hugged and kissed each other, men shouted and many actually shed tears of joy when the Winona assembly and Bible conference grounds were sold to E. O. Excell of Chicago. Excell was the directors' representative.

SCHOOLING COPS

Berkeley, Cal., Aug. 31.—Policemen of Berkeley will be required to attend the University of California. This, it is thought, is the first time any city in the world has made preparations to have a "college-bred police department." The course of study is in the relation of mental disease to criminology.

Some people, especially those with far from vigorous appetites, say they prefer that some one else select the menu and bring it to the table as a surprise. That is what will happen to the whole family where the service of the parcel post farm hamper is put to use. The farmer is not like the city market man, who, if he hasn't the thing called for on hand, can send out for it, charging accordingly. The farmer has certain produce ready when it's hamper time, and it goes to the city kitchen, a sort of square deal grab bag. You never know what is coming out, but it's all good anyway—no blanks.

MILITARY ELEMENT IS LOSER

Foreign Office Now Directing Affairs at Berlin.

BOTH WOULD MAINTAIN PEACE

German Chancellor Finally Obtains the Upper Hand in Regard to Differences With the United States—Admiral Von Tirpitz Solicitous of Effect of Reprimand on German Submarine Commanders.

Washington, Aug. 31.—While officials are waiting for the report from the German government on the sinking of the Arabic, interest is centered chiefly in reports that there is a difference of opinion between Von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German chancellor, and Admiral Von Tirpitz of the admiralty, as to the course that is to be pursued.

Secretary Lansing received a dispatch from Ambassador Gerard at Berlin and there is good reason to believe that it contained information as to this difference. The understanding here is that Admiral Von Tirpitz and the German chancellor are agreed on the desirability of settling the controversy with the United States and maintaining peace. They are agreed on Germany making substantial concessions. The point on which they differ, according to the reports that have reached Washington, is in regard to the disciplining of the German submarine commander, if it turns out that he really is responsible for the sinking of the Arabic.

Admiral Von Tirpitz, it is said, is solicitous of the effects of such action upon commanders of German submarines generally. While he joins with the German chancellor in desiring a settlement of the submarine controversy, even if it includes a disavowal in the case of the Arabic, he is anxious that the matter shall be handled in such a way that it will not have a demoralizing effect upon other commanders of German undersea boats. This is believed here to be the explanation of the recent conference by the German chancellor and Admiral Von Tirpitz with the kaiser.

The information that has reached Washington is that the German foreign office finally has obtained the upper hand in the councils in regard to the differences with the United States and that the wishes of the chancellor probably will prevail in the negotiations for the settlement of the submarine issue. Until recently the military element in Berlin was controlled by everyone in regard to the controversy with the United States. That fact has been repeatedly reported to the state department by Ambassador Gerard.

The American Dollar

Last Saturday was the third consecutive day upon which a new low record of depreciation of the English pound sterling was established in the present money center of the world—New York.

Quoted at $4.63 1-8 at the close of Friday's market the standard pocket piece of John Bull dropped five-eighths of a cent in two hours on Saturday.

The present generation cannot remember when the English pound sterling was not the standard of value in money the world over. By it the coins of all other nations were measured and tested. It was the yard stick which measured the commodities in the world's markets. Even our own dollars were worth so much or so little in pounds sterling.

The war has changed conditions and the haughty Britisher is compelled to have his standard coin measured for worth by the standard coin of another nation.

The American people cannot help feeling pride in the fact that the American dollar is now the standard of value the world over and that Great Britain for once must measure up to our standard money.

The experience is a new one to both the United States and Great Britain. This nation has the largest trade balance in its history and for the first time has become the money center and the treasure house for the gold of Europe.

The American dollar never looked so good and never was so good as it is today.

A Community Seeks to Hide

The people of Marietta, Georgia, that little southern town now known all over the land as the place where Leo M. Frank was lynched by a mob, are active.

The worst feature in connection with their activities is that they are endeavoring not to apprehend and punish the parties who perpetrated the monstrous crime which has brought disgrace upon the commonwealth of Georgia but in an endeavor to prevent that very much desired event from actually happening.

Marietta is nervous and every stranger who arrives is pointedly asked what his business is and why he comes to that city. Should the stranger be unable to give a satisfactory account of himself and assure his inquisitors that business having no connection with the lynching of Frank brings him to Marietta, he is invited to leave, and the authorities see to it that he does leave at the earliest possible moment.

The police force of the little town has been increased, the announced reason being to protect the inhabitants from harm at the hands of those whose desire it is to wreak vengeance upon the persons responsible for Frank's death.

The more reasonable explanation of the unusual activities, however, is that the inhabitants of Marietta do not want the slayers of Frank apprehended. They are not themselves going to ascertain, judicially, who those slayers are and they do not want any strangers to obtain information which would fasten guilt upon any resident of that city.

Frequently the individual guilty of crime adopts methods designed to forestall those who would hunt him down, but it is unusual for a community to flee from guilt and undertake to hide itself from the world.

Marietta has added, it seems, one more act which points to guilt and thus increases its disgrace.

The Corn Crop Prospect

Our farmer friends who have been deeply concerned lest a continuation of the rainy weather would prevent the proper maturing of the corn crop, if indeed the splendid corn has not been kept green and soft too long already, may gain encouragement from the remark recently made by one of our local "agriculturists."

The reader will note, of course, that an agriculturist is one who makes his money in the city and spends it on the farm, while a farmer is a man who makes his money on the farm and spends it in the city.

This particular agriculturist is certain if it becomes necessary to cut the corn green this year, that it will not be the first time that a good corn crop has cured in the shock.

Being neither agriculturists or farmers, we can only hope that he is correct and to confidently believe that he is until the disillusionment comes, if it ever does come.

Those many many people who depend upon the prosperity of the farmer and are solicitous for his welfare, from selfish as well as kindly motives, can certainly gain much happiness from the confident assurance that every thing is all right and the corn of Fayette county is "made" right now.

But be that as it may, we can all of us—farmers and the rest—quit borrowing trouble and being in the dumps about what may never happen.

We know—all of us—that the corn crop is tremendous in its probabilities of yield now and we can afford to live happy and contented in the full confidence that, having done so well thus far, nature is not going to destroy that work.

We can all be happy in the belief that nature will send us the dry days to ripen and cure the corn in the fields or failing in that, that bundled up in its great green husk the corn will dry out and harden in the shock.

Poetry For Today

IF THEY COULD SPEAK.
If they could speak, those dumb
beasts as they lie
On battle-field where war has laid them low,
What would the horses tell us ere they die?

What bitter grief do these mute suff'ers know?

They hold no hate at heart for humankind,

Nor crave they aught, forsooth,
but what they need;

And man has taught them but to love and mind,

Ofttimes in servitude to his own greed.

Not glory lures them to the battlefield,

Nor foolish pride that rails at fancied wrong;

They are but thoughtless beasts and can but yield

The while they feel the fitters of the thong.

But then, methinks, those eyes so filled with pain,

Ere yet the glaze of death has robbed their sight,

Have known full well how hellish and how vain

That carnage is as argument for right.

Green meadows would they call the fields of glory,

And brave ones those who help make strong the weak,

And love and service then would be the story

Of those dumb beasts, if they could only speak.

LOCAL POLICE CONFISCATE LARGE QUANTITY OF WHISKY

James Duckwall Caught in the Act by Officers and Lodged in Jail—Anti-saloon League Behind Prosecution.

James Duckwall, local drayman, was caught in the act of unloading a cargo of whisky cases, containing 119 pint bottles, at his barn, rear South Hinde street, about 10 o'clock Monday night by the local police who, acting on a tip, had prepared a trap.

Duckwall was lodged in the county jail to await a charge, which was to have been placed against him late Tuesday or Wednesday. The liquor was confiscated.

John Kennedy, who was with Duckwall when the latter was arrested, was not apprehended, but may later be taken in charge. Duckwall told the police that a part of the whisky belonged to Kennedy, who denies implication.

Police Tipped.

The trapping of Duckwall was the result of a telephone tip, received about 7:30 o'clock Monday evening, by Acting Chief of Police Baughn. It was to the effect that Duckwall, with a two horse wagon containing the whisky, was on his way from Chillicothe.

Chief of Police Moore, now on vacation, was notified. Shortly after, Chief Moore and Acting Chief Baughn, in an automobile, started out the Chillicothe pike, after stationing Bell and Sever at the Duckwall barn.

The officers in the automobile discovered their quarry about four miles from the city on the Chillicothe pike driving a wagon as described to them, Kennedy with him.

They did not then accost the men, preferring to follow and watch their movements.

On arriving in this city, Duckwall drove immediately to his barn and had unloaded one case of the whisky when the officers stationed there placed him under arrest.

The police believe that this is not the first trip of the kind Duckwall has made, and from other quarters it is ventured that he is acting as a "middleman" for someone else.

It is stated that the local Anti-Saloon League officials are behind the prosecution of the case.

INJURED WOMEN LEAVE HOSPITAL

Accident in Columbus Sunday Is More Serious Than First Reported, Although Injured People Seem to Be Recovering Rapidly.

From the Protestant Hospital, Columbus, the Herald learned Tuesday that Miss Mary Robinson, of this city, and Mrs. Roy Hagler and Miss Maggie Clemens, of Hagler's Station, who were injured when a street car struck the Howard Hagler automobile in Columbus Sunday afternoon, would leave the hospital Tuesday afternoon.

From this it may be inferred that the injured women are improving. They will probably remain a few days at the home of Mrs. Luella Herbert, a sister of Miss Robinson and Mrs. Hagler, in Columbus, before returning to this city.

The two children, Alfred Hagler and Grove Davis, were sufficiently recovered from their injuries to attend the state fair Monday afternoon.

From information received by relatives in this city, the accident would appear to have been of a more serious nature than first reports indicated.

Miss Robinson, when the car struck the machine, was hurled from the tonneau into the street, alighting squarely on her face. The fall caused several severe bruises and lacerations of her face, besides knocking a number of teeth loose.

Miss Clemens, was also thrown from the car and, according to information here, sustained fractures of three ribs. Dazed by the shock, Miss Clemens, when she arose to her feet,

BRINGS ACTION FOR SIX HUNDRED DOLLARS

Settlement was procured, the plaintiff alleges, and the defendant was paid the $1,200, her share of which the plaintiff declares the defendant has refused to pay her.

PRAYER BEFORE BATTLE.

When a Whole Army Knelt Before the Order to Attack.

During one of the numerous wars waged by France two centuries ago a strange scene took place near Saluzzo, a disputed outpost, which well illustrates the religious spirit which often prevailed among the soldiers of earlier times.

The French approached the besiegers' lines, and both armies were arranged for a conflict. The sun shone from a cloudless sky; every detail on each array in the field was visible to the other, and both were beheld at once from the citadel.

There were three French marshals present, and it was Schomberg's turn to command. He drew up his 20,000 men in four lines, with skirmishers in front, and the regular cavalry were placed at stated intervals, ready to charge.

In this impressive order and in absolute silence the French advanced until nearly within cannon shot, when at a signal the army was halted and simultaneously knelt down to pray. Then followed the order to attack, which was silently and cheerfully obeyed.

The battle was not to be, however, for Mazami, amid a volley of musketry, suddenly appeared, rode at a gallop between the armies and stayed the incipient fight by bringing acceptable terms of peace.—Washington Star.

LAWS OF WAR ON LAND.

Adopted to Save Conquered States From Organized Pillage.

The Hague laws of war on land, drawn up in 1899 and 1907 and adopted by all nations, were designed to check the rapacity of conquerors and to save vanquished states from organized spoliation, says Case and Company.

Pillage is formally forbidden. This is a prohibition against the looting of captured towns, against acquiring booty at the expense of private property, but does not, of course, forbid the seizure of horses, arms or military supplies taken on the field of battle.

The laws further permit a military occupant to levy, in addition to the ordinary taxes, money contributions for the needs of the army or of the administration of the occupied territory. Contributions are to be required only on a written order and on the responsibility of a commander in chief.

Their collection is to be regulated by the rules in force for the assessment of taxes, and in every case a receipt is to be given to the individual payer. But this voucher, while evidence that money, goods or service has been exacted, implies in itself no promise to pay on the part of the occupant.

Getting at the Truth.

At twenty-three he thought fate was making a special effort to keep him down.

At thirty-five he thought he might have done great things if his wife had not been such a handicap.

At forty he believed he would have been a great man if his children had not made it necessary for him to cling to the sure things.

At fifty he was positive that there was a conspiracy against him on the part of his fellow men.

At sixty he felt that if he could have been thirty-five again nothing could have stopped him.

At seventy he began to believe that he had failed because of a lack of courage and inability to make the most of his opportunities.

At eighty he was almost sure of it.—Chicago Herald.

Tyrone.

Tyrone takes its name from one of the eight sons of Niall of the Nine Hostages, the ancestors of all the O'Neills. Four of these sons carved out large portions of Ulster between them.

Eogan's share becoming known as Tir Eogain (land of Eogan), which still survives as Tyrone, while Conall's share, long known as Tir Conaill (Tyrone), is now Donegal. Fermanagh still bears its ancient name, which signifies "the mountain valley marsh district," which after centuries of wavering finally triumphed over the alternative, Maguire's county.—London

Defining a Siege.

In international law a siege is thus defined by Oppenheim: "Siege is called the surrounding and investing of an enemy locality by an armed force, cutting off those inside from all communication for the purpose of starving them into surrender or for the purpose of attacking the invested locality and taking it by assault. Bombardment is the throwing of shot and shell upon persons and things by artillery. Siege may be accompanied by bombardment and assault, but this is not necessary, since a siege may be carried out by mere investment and starvation caused thereby."

Difference In Time.

A large, slow footed darky was led against the corner of the railroad station in a manufacturing town where the noon whistle in the big factory blew and the hands hurried out, bearing their grub buckets. The darky listened, with his head on one side, until the racketing echo had quite died away. Then he heaved a deep sigh and remarked to himself:

"Dar she go. Dinner time for some folks, but jes' 12 o'clock fur me!"—New York Times

Josephine's Many Names.

Josephine, empress of the French was Yvette to her intimate friends. Her name in reality was Marie Josephine Rose Napoleon after the marriage enacted that she should be known as Josephine. He had a mania for baptizing the women of his entourage. He made his sister Marianne an Elise, of Annecy and a Caroline, of Paulette a Pauline.

Among her numerous friends Josephine remained Yvette Barras never called her otherwise.

In 1814, on the departure for Elba the Debs designated Josephine under the paraphrase "the mother of Prince Eugene."

At Ruell her tomb bears this simple inscription: "A Josephine, Eugene et Hortense, 1825." The restoration did not permit her recognition as empress—Cri de Paris.

HE WASN'T MAKING MONEY.

But Still He Had a Good Reason For Congratulating Himself.

He was a renter, and at least every other season he was occupying a different farm. By a friend's advice he had moved the year before into an entirely new field, a dozen miles from his usual haunts, and had not been seen for several months. When the friend did see him at last it was quite by accident, business taking him into the old man's neighborhood. The farmer hailed him from the cornfield and came out to the fence.

"Hello!" said the friend. "Is this your farm?"

"Yes; and I just come over to tell you, sir, that I'll be ready to pay part of that claim of yours before long."

"You must be doing well."

"I think I'm doin' just fine, and I'm obliged to you, sir, for headin' me this way."

"I am always glad to help if I can."

"I know that, sir, and that's why I come away over here so far from home. It's kinder strange to me, but as long as I am doin' as well as I am I am goin' to stand it."

"Are you making any money?"

The old man's face brightened perceptibly. "No, I ain't sir," he replied hopefully, "but I'm losin' it slower'n I ever done in my life before."—Argonaut.

Wilson to Take Up National Defense Program.

MEANS BIG FIGHT IN THE SENATE

Majority Leader Kern of the Opinion That the People Are Against Expenditure of Half Billion in Warships and Army Increases—Opposition Also Noted In the House of Representatives.

Washington, Aug. 31.—Administration officials let it be known that as soon as the Arabic crisis may be considered as settled President Wilson will concentrate his attention on the national defense program.

It is known already that the president and his advisers are giving careful consideration to the subject of army and navy increases. It is understood that strong pressure is being exerted upon the administration to adopt a conservative course in shaping the national defense policy. This was indicated by a statement made by Senator Kern of Indiana, Democratic leader of the senate, who declared emphatically that the sentiment of the people in his section of the country was against the expenditure of $500,000,000 on warships and army increases.

The utterances of the majority leader of the senate are in accord with the view expressed by Representative Caudle Kitchin of North Carolina, who will succeed Senator-elect Underwood in the house leadership. Since the president authorized the announcement, which was accepted by the country as an earnest of his commitment to a program of adequate army and navy development, there have been increasing evidences in addition to the pronouncements from the majority leaders of congress, that the administration has a hard task before it in pushing its program to enactment.

The word which comes from a high official source, however, is that the president has not wavered because of this discouragement, and that he is prepared to "go through" with the policy he indicated in the announcement of July 23.

Lawler, tax clerk, Carrollton; G. P. Dugan, Springfield, and R. R. Aukenman, Cadiz.

He denied that his visit had anything to do with any prospective bond issue.

WRIGHT DENIES

GOV. WILLIS ISSUES DEFY

Columbus, Aug. 31.—Based on reports which had come to him that some officials, connected with the state liquor license commission, had promised to keep in their positions such county license commissioners as circulated petitions for a referendum on the McDermott license decentralizer, Governor Willis repudiated any such deal, if there was one. He said he wouldn't abide by it, and threatened further to reduce the salaries of county licensers who became petition peddlers.

BLUNDERS OF AUTHORS.

Some Queer Things of Which Fiction Characters Are Guilty.

For many years a favorite pastime of the literary dilettante has been to ferret out mistakes made by celebrated authors. Writers of the highest standing have been guilty of absurd "bloopers," such as Flaubert's assertion that "the two adversaries were placed at an equal distance from each other." Mistakes of this sort have been excused on the ground that the authors were working under pressure of inspiration and were therefore likely at any time to make minor errors.

Stories of today do not, as a rule, appear to be written under the stress of temperamental excitement. Yet, in spite of their seemingly cool sophistication, they are not lacking in curious mistakes. A short list of these errors has been compiled by a writer in the Philadelphia Ledger:

I screamed in silent rage.

A girl tore her eyes from the stage, but her ears still lingered.

"I will never speak to you again as long as I live," hissed Dolly. (Just try to kiss it.)

Her feet were swollen from standing in wet salty water.

Like Adela, he had dark brown hair, with enormous black eyebrows, a mustache and a short beard.

What, therefore, was our surprise to find Fish sitting by the fire in her bath robe and slippers with a cup of tea in her lap and her feet in a tub of water.

Spontini's Decorations.

Casparo Spontini, the composer, regarded himself in the light of a demigod, and when inspirations crowded upon him he donned a wide, toga-like gown of white silk with a border of gold and a fez of white silk embroidered in gold from which a heavy tassel hung down. With great dignity he sat down before his desk, and if a grain of dust was visible on the paper on which he penned his music he rang the bell impatiently for his servant to remove the obstacle. Spontini owned so many medals and decorations that they could no longer be accommodated on his breast. At a grand musical reunion at Halle an old musician remarked to a comrade, "See how many decorations Spontini has, while Mozart has not one."

Spontini, who overheard it, replied quickly, "Mozart, my dear friend, does not need them."

Novel Rabbit Catcher.

Crabs are put to a curious use on certain parts of the Devonshire fore-shore. They are used to catch rabbits. Having located a promising burrow, the snarer takes a crab and affixes a short length of lighted candle to the back of its shell. The behavior of a crab which finds itself in a narrow enclosure is well known. It begins to run. It therefore starts away up the burrow at top rate and presently the rabbit is horrified at the sight of a jag trotting flame coming to his sanctuary. Off he goes for the other exit, only to find himself, when he emerges, in a trap.—London Spectator.

His Mental Incapacity.

The Court—So you ask divorce from this man on the ground of mental incapacity. What proof have you that he's insane? The Woman—Who said he was insane, your honor? The Court—Why, you say he is mentally incapable. The Woman—Yes; incapable of understanding that I'm boss.

OHIO VALLEY IS COLDEST PLACE

By Associated Press.

Washington, August 31.—Summer's coldest weather was spread to-day over most of the country, and lowest temperatures ever recorded in August were reported from the Ohio Valley.

PALACE.

William Farnum appears at the Palace again Tuesday of this week in "The Plunderer," a play taken from Roy Norton's novel of that name.

By many "The Plunderer" is said to excell the famous "Spoilers" and the fight scene in this picture is claimed to be the maddest and most realistic ever reproduced on screen.

The picture is of five parts and is a story of mingled love, hate and lust of gold in a mining camp.

Jane Cowl, famous legitimate star, in "The Garden of Lies," by Justus Miles Forman, is billed for Friday. This picture goes five reels.

IMPORTS, EXPORTS TRADE BALANCE

Washington, D. C., August 31.—Figures made public by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce Department of Commerce, show a slight decrease in imports and a large gain in exports during July and the 7 months ending with July, 1915, when compared with those periods of last year. July imports totalled $143,099,620 this year, against $159,677,291 a year ago.

July exports were the largest ever recorded for that month, being for this year $267,978,990, compared with $154,138,947 for July, 1914, and $160,990,778 for July, 1913, when the month made a new high record.

Of the July, 1915, imports 64.6 per cent entered free of duty, against 59.2 per cent in July last year.

During the 7 months ending with July, imports this year totalled $1,008,909,441 against $1,140,593,373 in 1914, a decrease of 11.6 per cent; while exports aggregated $1,969,787,495, in 1915, against $1,200,982,162 in 1914, a gain of 64 per cent.

For the month of July, 1915, there was an export balance of $124,879,370 as compared with an import balance of $5,538,344 in July, 1914, and export balance of $21,929,008 in July, 1913. For the 7 months ending with July, the export balance fell only a little short of being a billion dollars, the total being $960,878,054, against $60,388,789 in the first seven months of 1914.

Gold imports in July, 1915, amounted to $17,262,938, against $3,391,715 in July, 1914; and gold exports in July last were $2,191,735 compared with $33,669,424 in July, 1914. For the seven months ending with July this year's gold imports aggregated $162,187,374, against $34,135,137 in 1914; while gold exports were $9,774,262, in comparison with $117,643,959 in 1914. Thus there was a net inward gold movement of $152,413,112 in the first 7 months of 1915 and a net outward movement of $83,508,822 in a like period of 1914.

In ancient times among inland peoples the possession of a salt spring was regarded as a special gift of the gods. The Chaonians in Epirus had one which flowed into a stream where there were no fish, and the legend said Heraclides had allowed their forefathers to have salt instead of fish.

To what do you attribute your remarkable health?
